GREEN CASE STARTS IN CIRCUIT COURT

DIXON PHYSICIAN APPEARED IN COURT TODAY TO ANSWER CHARGE.

NO JURY SECURED TODAY

Little Interest Manifested in Trial of Aged Doctor—Judge Heard Ordered Extra Venire.

BULLETIN 4:30 P. M.
At 4 o'clock the court took an adjournment until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Dr. Samuel M. Green of this city was this afternoon placed on trial in the Lee county circuit court for the alleged murder of Miss Mary Coleman, the 17 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Coleman of Milledgeville, who died on July 12, 1912, supposedly from an illegal operation, which is charged to the aged doctor.

The doctor, when arraigned, pleaded "Not Guilty," and immediately the work of securing a jury was commenced. Attorneys Wingert & Wingert appearing for the defendant and States Attorney Harry Edwards prosecuting.

Jacob Ankeny of Amboy, the first venireman examined, was excused for cause, by the court.

George Schulthies admitted having expressed an opinion, and to shorten the work Judge Heard asked all jurors who had expressed an opinion to so indicate and the following complied with the request and were excused: Bert Delp, George Henkey, Roy R. Beach, Wm. Biggart, James July, Justin Wagner and Hugh Emmert.

The state used its first three challenges, excusing Bert Wallace of Dixon, Harry Fred of Nelson and Charles Coss of Wyoming.

The regular panel was exhausted at 2:30 o'clock and Judge Heard ordered that a special venire be issued for fifty jurors to report as soon as possible.

On agreement of the attorneys the statutory provision that there must be twelve men in the jury box at all times, was waived and the examination of jurors continued.

The technical requirement that all twelve men be in the jury box while the examinations are going on was evaded by the non-acceptance or rejection of any further jurors, who will be passed upon, however, as soon as the vacant chairs are filled from the new venire.

At 2:45 o'clock the state had accepted the first four:

Henry Reitz, Ashton,
Fred Frederick, Palmyra,
John Politch, Wyoming,
Joe Atkinson, Amboy.

The examination of the jurors by the attorneys for Dr. Green was especially minute, indicating that a very strong defense is to be made.

MAY PROVIDE FOR AUTO FIRE TRUCK

ANNUAL APPROPRIATION ORDINANCE IS IN PROCESS OF PREPARATION.

The members of the city council are at work preparing the annual appropriation ordinance, which it is hoped can be gotten ready for presentation a week from today. The commissioners are discussing the advisability of including in the ordinance an appropriation toward purchasing an auto fire truck, an appliance which it is reported a majority of the council favor.

The old hose wagon has about outlived its usefulness, say the firemen, and it is unsafe for use at the present time. It is argued that it would require over $300 to repair the wagon so it will be fit for use, and inasmuch as the horses are expensive property, the commissioners may see fit to appropriate for a truck.

NO CHAIRS TODAY.

The ordinance prohibiting more than three seats of any kind in a Dixon saloon became effective Saturday at midnight and accordingly the patrons of dram shops can not sit down today.

HUNT RUNAWAY POLO GIRLS HERE

BELIEVED TO HAVE REGISTERED AT LOCAL HOTEL UNDER ASSUMED NAMES.

BULLETIN.

Sergeant Gaffney captured the two runaway girls at the corner of Sixth and Madison late this afternoon. They proved to be the girls who had registered at the Dewey hotel as Elisabeth Host, Hazelhurst, and Ella McDonald, Hazelhurst. The girls came with the officer willingly and were taken back to their homes by the Polo marshal.

Ada Myers and a girl named Loman, both of Polo, who disappeared from their homes Saturday, were sought in Dixon today and were believed to have registered at a local hotel under assumed names. Marshal S. N. Dodson of Polo was here today searching for the girls, and was aided by the Dixon police.

The girls who registered at the hotel were said to be between the ages of fifteen and seventeen years, and from meagre descriptions were the ones sought by the Polo authorities. They came to the hotel and took a room after midnight on Saturday, and left shortly after noon today, just in time to elude the officials. The girls at the hotel may not have been the ones in question, but the fact that one of the Christian names given—a very common one—was misspelled, points strongly toward the use of aliases.

DELAYS SIGNING ALIEN LAND BILL

GOV. JOHNSON WILL WAIT "REASONABLE TIME" TO HEAR FROM PRESIDENT.

BRYAN MAKES FINAL PLEA

Gives Wilson's Criticism on California Legislature's Action—Says Law, if Enacted, Would Be Referred to People.

Sacramento, Cal., May 5.—The California anti-alien land holding act, which passed both houses of the legislature within twenty-four hours, after bringing about one of the most unusual situations in the history of the nation, will lie on Governor Johnson's desk without his signature until Secretary of State Bryan can confer with President Wilson in Washington. This will mean a delay of nearly a week, as secretary Bryan will not reach the national capital until Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

Only three votes were cast against the measure in the lower house, one Democrat and two Republican members opposing the bill on the final passage. The roll call was held less than twenty-four hours after the final passage of the act in the senate.

Bryan Says Farewell.
Secretary of State Bryan concluded his mission to the governor and legislature of California with a message of farewell. To an open joint session of the two houses, attended by the governor, he gave renewed assurances of the friendly interest and co-operative attitude of the national administration toward the peculiar problems of California, transmitting the president's latest criticism of the alien land act passed by the state senate and rehearsing again those objections already made public.

Secretary Bryan in his address voiced the president's opinion that the words "eligible to citizenship" substituted in the California attorney general's redraft of the alien land measure for the words "ineligible to citizenship," are equally discriminatory and therefore equally objectionable to Japan.

If a law must pass he urged that it be limited in its operation to two years, in order that meanwhile diplomacy might so improve the international situation that re-enactment by the next legislature would be necessary. This suggestion, which had not yet reached the president, he said, was made "for the consideration of those who have yet to act upon the subject."

Responsibility Extensive.
In summing up, Secretary Bryan rehearsed the objections and suggestions of the president, already made public, and concluded:

"Having performed the duty imposed upon me by the chief executive of the nation my work is done. You have listened patiently and courteously and now the responsibility rests upon you to do what you deem necessary, recognizing as you doubtless do that you act not only as the representatives of the state, dealing with lands lying within the state, but as the representatives of a state occupying a position among her sister states and sharing with them an interest in and responsibility for international relations."

"You are fortunate in this state in having the initiative and referendum. The initiative spurs you on to do that which you believe your people want done, while the referendum empowers those for whom you speak to put their veto upon your acts if you fail to reflect their wishes. It may be assumed, therefore, that if you feel it your duty to enact any legislation on this subject at this time your people will either manifest their approval by acquiescence or their disapproval by submitting your action to the judgment of the voters by means of the referendum."

"I leave you with renewed assurances of the president's friendly concern in the subject with which you are dealing and my appreciation of the kind reception which you have accorded me as his spokesman."

Japanese File Protests.
San Francisco, May 5.—A cablegram from Tokyo to the Japanese-American, a Japanese daily paper of this city, states that the Japanese government has cabled instructions to Baron Chinda, Japanese ambassador at Washington, to make formal protest against the alien land bill enacted by the California legislature and now awaiting Governor Johnson's signature.

The message adds that the position taken by the Japanese government is that the United States government is responsible for the finding of a satisfactory solution of the situation in California under its treaty obligations to Japan.

Misses Killian, O'Connell, Modler and Flemming of Sterling attended the ball game here Sunday.

MARINE BAND TO HAVE A TAG DAY

PROCEEDS OF THE DAY TO BE USED FOR BAND CONCERTS—MAY 24 IS THE DAY.

The 24th of May has been set for "Tag Day" for the Dixon Marine Band, a local organization that is a source of much pride to the city and has been responsible for considerable advertising for Dixon.

The management of the band hopes to treat Dixonites to many band concerts this summer, which they will do if they can get encouragement and support from the rest of us. They have, unlike most bands of the sort, never required much outside help. The DeKalb band was given over $1,000 by the merchants of that city last year for their support, and still they were unable to stick together because of lack of finances.

The Dixon Marine band hopes to raise enough on tag day to make any further subscriptions unnecessary. A number of young ladies are planning to sell tags and the band will play on the streets most of the day.

It is hoped that they will be accorded a liberal patronage.

HAS OPTION ON THE NACHUSA HOUSE

INDIANIAN SEEKS TO PURCHASE WELL KNOWN HOTEL AND REMODEL.

SAYS HE WILL SPEND $25,000

Papers On Way to Japan for the Signature of Mrs. F. K. Orvis, Owner of the Hotel.

M. E. Rice of Fort Wayne, Ind., has purchased an option on the Nachusa House, which he hopes to buy and take over when the lease now owned by the present occupant, Thomas Young, expires.

Papers have been made out and sent to Japan for the signature of Mrs. F. K. Orvis, owner of the property, who is traveling abroad.

Mr. Rice stated to a Telegraph reporter today that if he secured the hotel, which he seems confident of doing, he would close it for five or six months and spend about $15,000 in rebuilding and put about $10,000 more into furniture.

The Nachusa House is one of the best known hostleries in northern Illinois.

NICHOLAS GIVES UP

King of Montenegro Orders Scutari Evacuated.

Austria Mobilizes 60,000 Troops to Aid Italy in Ending Monarchical Conditions in Albania.

London, May 5.—Advices from Cetinje state that King Nicholas of Montenegro, confronted with the threatening attitude of Austria, has ordered that Scutari be evacuated at once.

Austria, however, is not relaxing military preparations, although the objective of these preparations is not now Montenegro, nor even Scutari. The pacification of Albania is the task for which Austria is mobilizing 60,000 troops.

Co-operating with Italy, Austria will occupy Albania, with the object of ending anarchical conditions there.

As a measure of precaution, martial law has been proclaimed in Bosnia, and also in Herzegovina, the neighboring Austrian state. This means considerable curtailment of public liberty. It is stated in official circles that the occupation of Albania will be only temporary and that no division of territory is contemplated, but elsewhere such assurances are distrusted.

Actual military operations are expected to begin within the next few days.

A Times dispatch from Constantinople says that the porte has replied accepting the powers' invitation to cease hostilities and appoint peace plenipotentiaries.

A news agency dispatch received from Cetinje states that the entire Montenegrin cabinet has resigned as a protest against the evacuation of Scutari by King Nicholas.

GOOD SUNDAY SERVICE

The hourly Sunday interurban service, which was inaugurated by the S. D. & E. yesterday, proved especially popular with the patrons of the road. The cars make the trip between the two cities in 40 minutes, as during the week, but cars leave each city hourly during the afternoon and evening.

PILED UP AT DEKALB.

STARS HAND WEST ENDS A TROUNCING

"THE FORCE" PUT ON A SNAPPY DEMONSTRATION IN GAME YESTERDAY.

FINAL SCORE OF 6 TO 1

Huber Pitched Good Game and His Aids Were Right Behind Him All the Time.

Dressed in handsome new blue uniforms, like "policemen," and each proud of a big white star on his left breast, the Dixon Stars yesterday afternoon "copped" the first game of their season, taking the Sterling West Ends to the booby-hatch by a score of 6 to 1. Incidentally Camp Huber demonstrated that the winter's rest hadn't done him a bit of harm, for he held the hard hitting Sterlings to two hits, one of them decidedly scratchy, too.

The opening game, which was attended by about 500 fans and fanettes, started off with a battle between two promising young men who throw from their off side, both Huber and Duffy being port wheelers. Mr. Huber kept throwing 'em from that side during the game; his rival, however, got enough in five innings and sat on the bench studying the effective delivery of Patrolman Huber.

Cops Scored First.

There was nothing doing on the "beat" until the third, when the Cops copped two. Officer Burke was safe when Duffy dropped his pop-up but Huber, although he lifted a long one to center which Conroy camped under, couldn't advance him. C. Keenan delivered with a short hit into left, and Emmert soaked one to right. Poor coaching sent Burke to his death at the plate, Beien making a perfect throw, and things looked bluer than the Cops' new uniforms.

Mr. Connors who, by virtue of his pleasant smile, has been promoted to the infield, plunked a two bagger into deep center with exceptional talent and Messrs. Keenan and Emmert reported at the station. Joe Keenan was safe on an error at first and stole, but Larkins ended the session by flying out to Conroy.

Were Very Generous.

The Cops became very generous in the fourth, actually presenting their opponents with one lone tally. Huber passed Lawler Conlon, who was thrown out on Beien's weak roller to short. Then Huber, after passing Conroy, threw wild to first in an effort to get him and when J. Whitebread heaved it over the fence trying to get Beien, that gentleman scored amid great demonstrations from the Sterling bunch, especially Bennie, the accomplished noise-maker. The West Ends carry along. Huber then remembered the uniform he wore, and like a real policeman arrested the next two offenders, striking them both out. That was all for Sterling.

Exit Mr. Duff.

Under the able tutelage of Sergeant Keenan the Cops charged the rioters en masse in the fourth and fifth annexing four large and beautiful runs. In the fourth, after A. Whitebread had fanned, Conroy dropped brother Jet's high one, Duffy lost his nerve and passed Burke, and Huber surprised himself and the natives by slamming a single by center field out. Mr. Charles Keenan did likewise and Jet sought the approbation of his teammates on the bench, of course scoring.

The fifth finished Mr. Duffy who, notwithstanding his reception, is a good little pitcher, and will be a big help to his team when he grows up. Joey Keenan flew out or flied out to second, but Larkins connected safely and went to second on a whooping wild pitch by the aforesaid Mr. Duffy, who helped the good cause by passing Whitebread. Once again did brother Jet come across, this time with one for two bases into left, on which two Cops ahead of him came home. Jet tried to stretch it into a three bagger and was nailed at third. Huber got his second hit after Burke had been passed, sending that young policeman to third, from which station he scored on Duffy's second wild heave which he served up during his efforts to fan C. Keenan, which he did.

Surprised Saturday.

The Ladies of the G. A. R. held a delightful surprise Saturday evening for Mrs. Ernest Moeller of Nelson. She came to town with the impression that Mrs. Chronister of 815 Ottawa avenue was to be the one surprised and was at the Chronister home when twenty of the Circle called and surprised her. A very happy evening was enjoyed by all. Delicious refreshments were served and games and music passed the evening. The ladies presented both Mrs. Chronister and Mrs. Moeller with gold recognition pins, which they value very highly.

D. A. R. Election.

The Daughters of the American Revolution held their May meeting with Mrs. Culp at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Lewis Petre. The daughters always look forward to a pleasant meeting at this ever hospitable home, with such delightful entertainers.

As this was the last regular meeting of the year, the annual reports of the different officers were given. The registrar reported 65 new members and a number of applicants for the coming year.

The report of the treasurer was especially gratifying: bills paid and all dues in; not a delinquent member, which shows an efficient treasurer and the deep interest felt by the members in the work of the order.

Every new baby which comes to the Chapter members is to receive an engraved Illinois spoon. Two have already been given.

Miss Laing read a very interesting account of the D. A. R. congress in Washington in April and spoke of the great loss the Daughters sustained in the death of Mrs. Charles H. Deere of Moline, who had held the office of vice president general of Illinois and of state regent, and at the time of her death was honorary

Many Eyes Defects

Are congenital—that is, the person was born with them.

There is often a flattening of the eyeball, or a shortening which renders seeing difficult.

The muscles of accommodation automatically strive to overcome these defects, which strain the eyes and cause all sorts of bodily discomforts. There is a simple, pleasant cure for all these troubles—the wearing of glasses.

We are able to determine what lenses each case needs—able to do it with scientific accuracy.

The act is refined and classy and will prove a revelation to theatregoers. WHAT PUZZLED PETE.

"The clergyman of a small town had a fine orchard and one night it was robbed, the only clue left being the robber's finger-print on an overripe peach. The minister had an enormous photographic enlargement of the finger-print made and, with it under his arm, accosted the man he suspected.

"Pete," he said, "someone robbed my orchard last night."

Pete gulped nervously. "Is that so, sir?" he said.

"Yes, Pete, that's so," replied the minister; "but the thief left his mark behind him and I shall easily find him."

"Yes, sir," said Pete, huskily. "Yes. Do you see this, Pete?" and the minister held up the huge enlargement of the finger-print.

Pete made a gesture of despair. "I see there ain't no use denying it, parson," he said. "I done it. But I sure would like to know where you got that impression of my corduroy pants."

GIVING HER A POINTER.

Miss Heavyweight—Yes, I'd like to be a good basketball player. Are there any books you could recommend that would help me?

Mr. Knowing—Well, before taking it up you might get some points on "First Aid to the Injured."

Pay! Pay! Pay!

In vain we jacks kick up a fuss
At garb worn by our Jills;
The only footwork asked of us
Is that we foot the bills.

Point in His Favor.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself to roam aimlessly about and never do any work," said Mrs. Naggars, to the ragged specimen of humanity who stood at her door.

"That's true, mum," replied the wanderer. "And yet you must give me credit for one thing."

"And what is that?" "Although I have been traveling over the world for more than twenty years, I have never yet acquired the souvenir habit."

Mystery.

Bacon—I see Alaska has its first dining-car made out of an old coach in the Cordova shops and managed by a man and his wife.

Egbert—Very interesting. But I think it would be more important to know what some of the dishes served on the dining-car are made of.

Nobody Loves Him.

Patience—And she married that man?

Patrice—Yes, she has.

"But did she love him?"

"Oh, I think not. I don't see how anybody could love him. I guess she married him out of sympathy. He was a baseball umpire, you know."

NO CHURCH CEREMONY.

Lovelorn—You wish me to elope with your daughter? Why, sir?

Harduppe—Because, no wedding bills for me.

An Old Annoyance.

The curtain rises, pleased we are
To see the play begin.
But cannot bear the famous star
For people trooping in.

Of Course.

"Josiah," said Mrs. Gottle, "it says in the paper here that Shakespeare's dead."

"Does it? That must of been why they had all the flags at half-mast the other day."

Absent-Minded.

Waiter—Do you mind if I put your bag out of the way, sir? The people coming in are falling over it.

Diner—You leave it where it is. If nobody falls over it, I shall forget it's there.—Fliegende Blaetter.

Not Expected.

Patience—Did Will surprise you when he called last night?

Patrice—Indeed, he did! He brought me a box of candy.

City In Brief

The Banker—Same as mine?

The Politician—Yes, same as you have on your door—"Push."

Disappointed.

His little wife vowed she would leave—
He wears a look of woe;
And why does this poor husband grieve?
Because she did not go.

Stating a Fact.

"Scribbler says he is thinking seriously of writing a book."

"I'm glad to hear that he is thinking of it seriously."

"Why so?"

"Considering the high cost of white paper, writing a book is not a task to be approached in a spirit of levity."

Here! Here!!

Very Meek Husband—I just finished writing your speech for the club, Maria.

His Wife (not so meek)—What's the subject?

Very Meek Man—"The Lady Who Will Strike Her Husband Is No Man."

—Satire.

Go Away Down.

"Good gracious!" exclaimed the first amateur fisherman; "I'm nearly out of hooks. I don't think fishhooks go as far as they used to."

"Well, I know they do when they get into eels," replied the second amateur fisherman, sadly.

As Propheesied.

"The soothsayer (we tried to spell clairvoyant and couldn't) said that she would marry a poor man."

"But she married a millionaire."

"I know it; but everyone who heard of the marriage exclaimed: 'Poor man!'"

Tolerably So.

First Drummer—Is Swampville a very slow town?

Second Drummer—Slow? Why, they've got frogs there three years old that haven't learned to swim yet."

Judge.

Something Brilliant.

Styles—My wife got off a brilliant thing last night, after we got home from the opera.

Myles—Yes? I didn't suppose she slept with that string of diamonds about her neck.

Immaterial.

"No man can inherit education."

"Well, what of it? If a man inherits money he can hire all the education he'll need, and not have to pay it big wages, either."

It begins to look as though the combination union suit has come to stay.

DARROW GIVEN AN OVATION

McNamara Attorney Addresses Chicago Federation of Labor.

Chicago, May 5.—Clarence Darrow surprised the Chicago Federation of Labor by appearing at their weekly meeting. He was given a rousing reception and addressed the federation on the child labor question. Later it developed that Darrow's fortune of $150,000 had been swallowed up in his two trials.

A letter was read from President Charles H. Moyer of the Western Federation of Miners calling on all union labor organizations to subscribe to a fund to assist Darrow in his third trial. This move was endorsed by the federation.

JAP AIRMAN LOSES LIFE

Aviator Trained in U. S. Crushed as He Ends Flight.

San Francisco, May 5.—Teiko Takeishi, a Japanese aviator who was trained in the United States, was instantly killed while making a landing from a flight from Osaka to Tito, Japan, according to a cablegram received by the Japanese-American, a local Japanese daily. Takeishi endeavored to land at the government reservation of Turakusa and his American-made biplane struck the ground with such force that it was smashed to pieces and the aviator crushed beneath it.

COULD NOT LOCATE HIM.

Richard Harding Davis praised at a dinner in Philadelphia the modern girl's love of sports.

"And how beautiful her open-air life has made her," said Mr. Davis. "I wish I could show you some of the primitive statuettes in the British museum—man's very first statuettes—for there you would see how the modern girl has improved upon her prehistoric sister. The prehistoric girl, these statuettes show, was all hips. Hips like a hoghead and shoulders and arms as weak and narrow as a little child's."

"I hate to see the modern girl, though, neglect her mind in the cultivation of her body. Once, at a tea in Rittenhouse square, Tennyson was being discussed and I turned to a tall girl of singular beauty and said:

"Do you like the 'Passing of Arthur'?"

"Arthur? Arthur?" she mused. "I'm sure he isn't a Pennsylvania man. Where is he playing, Yale or Harvard?"

NO BACKBITER.

Mr. Rambo—Did you remark at the club last night that I looked like a lobster, huh?

Mr. Sambo—No, huh. I am no backbiter, huh. If I wished to cast any aspersions upon de lobster family, I should go right to a fish market and do it straight to deyr faces, huh. Dat's my style, huh!

"Yes."

"But she hasn't a particle of make-up on her face."

"She doesn't wear paint and powder on the street any more for fear she might be mistaken for a society leader."

Good in a Grouch.

"I don't like grouchy people. Do you?"

"They suit me all right," answered the druggist. "When a man comes in with a grouch on, I know he wants to buy something. The fellow who approaches me with a wide grin either wants to bone me for a donation or stock me up with some bum line."

An Opening.

"What is your reason for refusing to shake hands with that man?"

"I desire to make an example of him, answered the severe statesman."

"But you are giving him a chance to make himself interesting. He will go around telling people he is the only man in the state who has not shaken hands with you."

Not Wholly Satisfactory.

"Hasn't anybody been able to invent a smoke-consumer that will work?" asked Slathers, as the train passed through Pittsburg.

"Not that I know of," said Bilkins. "I've got a boy who eats cigarettes, but I haven't been able to make him work yet."

SURE.

Jinks—It would be funny if we could see ourselves as others see us.
Blinks—It would be much funnier if we knew ourselves as our neighbors know us.

The Singer.

He sang a song each morning of bliss he'd never had.
He simply sang at evening To keep from feeling sad.

Brief and Pointed.

"That man Gabler is always looking for a chance to talk in public."

"Yes, I once heard him speak in a crowd of 4,000."

"Is that so? What did he say?"

"Louder, please!"

Unkind Suggestion.

"I always say what I think."
"Perhaps that is why you are a man of so few words."

H. K. THAW DENIES BOY'S PARENTAGE

Calls It Impossible Because He Has Been at Odds With Wife Five Years.

IS NOT AT ALL INTERESTED

Slayer of Stanford White, in Statement From Matteawan, Disowns Child Which Sailed Abroad With His Mother.

New York, May 5.—Harry K. Thaw, in a statement sent out from Matteawan, denies he is the father of the boy that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw took abroad with her Saturday.

In his statement Thaw says he is not interested in his wife's concerns in any way, that they no longer have anything in common, that any pretense that he is the father of the boy born in 1910 is ridiculous and false, and that he has been absolutely separated from his wife for more than five years.

Thaw's Statement in Full.
Following is Thaw's statement in full:

"I am not interested in Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's concerns in any way, and did not know she was going abroad. We no longer have anything in common.

"Any pretense that I have a child born in 1910 is ridiculous and false, as Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw and I have been absolutely separated for more than five years. You newspaper men know this; consequently it is unnecessary for me to say more."

On Good Terms in 1909.

Mrs. Thaw indicated that the child had been born abroad less than a year after the time Thaw was at White Plains fighting for his liberty. He then was treated with every consideration by the authorities. There has been no breach between himself and wife and he received frequent visits from members of his family.

Acting Superintendent Leck of Matteawan has received an order to bring Thaw to this city on May 12, the date set for the trial of Lawyer Anhalt in connection with the alleged effort to use money for the purpose of effecting the release of Thaw.

ELECT NEW HAYTIAN RULER

Michel Oreste Chosen President Amidst Great Disorder.

Port-au-Prince, Hayti, May 5.—The Haytian congress elected Michel Oreste president of the republic to succeed Gen. Tancrede Auguste, who died last Friday night. Oreste was a senator.

Both before and after the election, serious disorders occurred. Trouble began during the funeral services of General Auguste at the cathedral. Several fusillades were fired in different parts of the town and a panic ensued among the great assemblage in the church. Many women and children were trampled and seriously injured.

Troops were called out and temporarily re-established order.
Washington, May 5.—To be on hand for any possible contingencies in connection with the accession of a new president of Hayti, the gunboat Nashville, one of the naval watchdogs of the West Indies, sailed from Santo Domingo for Port-au-Prince.

SNAPS BLAST OF POWDER

Explosion Shatters 150,000 Tons of Stone in Quarry.

St. Louis, May 5.—Forty thousand pounds of powder was exploded in one blast near here, shattering 150,000 tons of rock and smashing a steep precipice into a mass of small stone.

The blast was set off in a quarry at Fort Bellefontaine. The stone loosened by the explosion will be hauled to cement mills.

The blast was the third largest ever fired in the United States. All the workmen connected with the explosion retired a quarter of a mile from the mill before lighting the fuse. A photographer, however, stood within 600 feet of the rock, and while stones were hurling 150 feet above his head he took a picture of the explosion.

WILSON WAITS ON MONEY

Refrains From Trying to Force Legislation at Special Session.

Washington, May 5.—President Wilson has given up all intention of trying to force currency legislation at the special session. The first step in the administration plan, however, will be taken this week, when he will send a special message laying a foundation for legislation based on the results of the Pujo investigations. The Democratic caucus committee of the house will be assembled by Leader Underwood at the conclusion of the consideration of the tariff bill to outline a budget appropriation system.

Noted Londoners Arrive.

New York, May 5.—Sir William Treloar, former lord mayor of London and Col. Sir William H. Dunn, who will be lord mayor in 1917, has arrived in the United States for a stay of six weeks.

GROWING COW PEAS A Factor in Soil Improvement—Feeding Value Ranks Next to Alfalfa

The cowpea is a plant that is not sufficiently appreciated. Its value as a soil renovator, as a green manure crop, as a catch crop, as a pasture and as a regular hay crop, gives it a place in Illinois agriculture which warrants its wide acceptance by our farmers. Its wide adoption to the soils and to the climatic conditions common to Illinois make it a crop that can be readily grown in practically every part of the state, and there is little doubt that its use is destined to a great increase, due to the constantly increasing prices of farm lands without a corresponding increase in production.

There are, however, some important reasons why the cowpea has not taken as an important place in agriculture as it deserves. Among these, are the high cost of seed and the difficulty in curing the hay. The gradual introduction of cowpea hatters that will separate the peas from the vine without cracking them, will undoubtedly overcome the first of these difficulties while proper methods of handling the hay will, in a great measure, overcome the difficulty encountered in curing. The third reason is that corn has been considered a better money crop. As a matter of fact, for the man who is feeding live stock, this is not necessarily true. Statistics show that as an average of all reports returned on the valuation of the various farm crops, the cowpeas stand at the head of the list.

Use in Soil Improvement

As a soil builder, where time is a factor, the cowpea has no equal. There is much the same benefit to the land to be derived from a crop of cowpeas, which requires but three months to mature, as there is from a crop of clover. The effect of cowpeas on the soil, not considered merely for the nitrogen which it adds, but the great improvement in tilth, or friability, in the soil is well known to all who have grown them. The beneficial effect on a corn crop, following a cowpea crop is exceedingly striking. For the man who has a "run-down" piece of land, therefore, or a piece of land which is naturally thin, there is no more rapid method to increase the fertility than in the growing of cowpeas, applying generous amounts of rock phosphate, and plowing both under together.

The Feeding Value.

The cowpea, unthreshed cowpea hay ranks next to alfalfa. It is particularly high in protein, and where properly cared for, gives one of the cheapest feeds for the modern farm. This is especially true since the yield per acre is ordinarily more than clover, and where peas can be handled conveniently they will frequently be a more remunerative crop for the farmer to grow than clover. However, clover has its place, especially in the regular rotation of crops, and cowpeas should not necessarily supplant it, except in localities where clover has begun to fail; in such localities the wide use of cowpeas together with liberal applications of both limestone, and rock phosphate cannot be too strongly recommended.—H. A. McKeene, Secretary, Illinois Farmers' Institute, Springfield, Illinois.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

By virtue of an order and decree of the County Court of Lee County, Illinois, made on the petition of the undersigned administrator of the estate of James Westcott, deceased, for leave to sell the Real Estate of said deceased, at the February Term, A. POULTRY CULTURE.

A Practical Course for Students.

(By permission of the Item Publishing Company)

Advantages. Only a small amount of money is necessary if the poultry keeper is satisfied to begin with a few fowls and to develop the business gradually.

The investment of funds if properly made yields prompt and reasonable returns.

For starting in the business only a small area of land is sufficient and a location may be selected where the land is not high in price.

Dressed fowls and eggs are favorite foods of the people and such are in constant demand at very satisfactory prices.

The demand for poultry products is increasing because of the advancing prices of meats of all kinds and the gradual diminishing of the supplies of wild fowl and other game. Furthermore new and special uses for poultry products, especially eggs, are arising and extending.

The products of poultry keeping are concentrated and valuable although perishable. They can stand considerable expense for prompt transportation to desirable customers. They are salable for cash and there is little if any waste.

Fowls utilize much of the waste of the household and farm and turn them quickly into products of value.

Poultry properly managed enrich and benefit the farm, garden and orchard.

Poultry keeping may be advantageously combined with or added to other occupations.

The industry is a healthy one and yields to intelligent, interested, earnest labor a suitable return of profit and pleasure.

Evidences. Some indication of the importance of poultry is found in quantities of dressed fowls and eggs for sale in stores and markets of the cities and villages of the country. Modern methods of rapid transportation have revolutionized poultry keeping as an industry. Production is no longer limited by the local demand and there is no danger of a glut in the market. Poultry farming is a young industry as yet and probably one-half of the total production is consumed in the household of the producers.

Statistics. A few figures from the U. S. census report of 1900 gives a more definite idea of the magnitude of the poultry interests in this country. The reported number of chickens, three months old and over, on the farms and ranges of the U. S. June 1, 1900, was.....233,598,085
The reported number of turkeys was.....6,599,367
The reported number of geese was.....5,676,863
The reported number of ducks was.....4,807,673

Total poultry.....250,681,988
The total number of farms in the U. S. was.....5,739,657
The number of farms that kept fowls was.....5,096,252
Of all farms in the U. S. 88.3 per cent kept poultry. The total value of poultry in the U. S. June 1, 1900.....$85,794,996
For the year 1899 the total value of poultry raised was.....139,981,877
For 1899 the total value of eggs produced was 144,286,158

Total annual poultry products of farms and ranges.....$284,268,055
The census report estimates the annual products from poultry not on the farms and ranges:
Poultry raised.....7,000,000
Eggs produced.....7,000,000

Grand total of annual poultry products.....$284,178,035
Our next bulletin of this course will be on the necessary characteristics of a successful poultry man.—H. A. McKeene, Secretary Illinois Farmers' Institute, Springfield, Illinois.

COAL STRIKE INQUIRY SEEN

Kern Resolution for West Virginia Probe Expected to Pass.

Washington, May 5.—An inquiry into the Paint and Cabin Creek (W. Va.) coal strike was deemed certain. Many senators said they had received requests asking that Senator Kern's resolution calling for an investigation be favorably acted upon. It is said President Wilson favors such an investigation. Secretary of Labor Wilson already has made an urgent plea for an inquiry, saying conditions "in West Virginia are a menace to the American republic."

WHY THE FLY IS DANGEROUS

For each female fly hatched in April there will be, if none of her progeny are killed, 7,600,000,000 in September of the same year.

Every fly is a possible carrier of disease on his hairy little feet.

He delights in cesspools, decaying animal and vegetable matter, barnyards, offal heaps, garbage barrels, etc., places where disease germs abide and multiply.

But he likes to vary his diet—fresh meat, sugar, bread, anything that humans eat, the fly also likes.

He dearly loves to frequent the kitchen and dining room of his human friends at their meal time, and he lunches on all kinds of filth between those meals.

Every time he leaves the swill barrel or the cesspool for the kitchen or dining room he carries with him on his feet some of the filth he has been walking in.

Swat, therefore, the voracious fly, or better still swat all you see, but keep from seeing many by starving them to death by keeping all their food supply in the stable, cesspool, swill barrel, kitchen and dining room, safely and securely covered up.

MT. MORRIS FIRM TO PRINT BOOK FOR DR. COOK
Mt. Morris Index: A check for $1,000, drawn on a Brooklyn bank and bearing the signature of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who claims the original honor of discovering the North Pole, reached the office of Kable Brothers' company yesterday morning as an advance payment on a contract entered into between the company and Dr. Cook for printing 25,000 copies of Dr. Cook's book, entitled, "My Attainment of the Pole." H. G. Kable, representing the company, had several conferences with Dr. Cook in Chicago the first of the week, which resulted in the closing of this contract.

IS LOWDEN AFTER SHERMAN'S TOGA?

Joseph G. Cannon, Col. F. O. Lowden and William B. McKinley were in Springfield together last week, and the fact gave rise to considerable political gossip, part of which was to the effect that Col. Lowden may become a candidate for the senate against Lawrence Y. Sherman, next time. It is also said that 'Uncle Joe,' will seek his old seat again, and Mr. McKinley will follow his example.

Col. Lowden and Mr. Cannon went to the state house to call on Governor Dunne, but he had gone to St. Louis.

A RARE COIN

Frank Forth of Union Grove, while working in his garden Monday last, found a one-cent piece bearing the date 1852. The coin is in an excellent state of preservation, with inscriptions and date quite legible.

"GET TOGETHER"

Chicago Inter Ocean: Again the cry of "Get together!" is raised for republican and progressive ears to hear. Not long ago it was Frank A. Munsey making the appeal through his New York Press. Now it is D. R. Hanna through his Cleveland Leader.

Mr. Munsey, it will be remembered, was the largest contributor in the east to the Roosevelt campaign fund and certainly is one of the progressive leaders. Mr. Hanna contributed $177,000 to the Roosevelt campaign fund and the Leader was one of the original Bull Moose organs and made a strong fight for the ticket in Ohio.

Mr. Hanna's Leader approves the action of the republican members of the Ohio assembly, who, in secret session, after the sine die adjournment of the legislature Tuesday arranged to call a peace conference of republicans in Ohio to make proposals to the progressives for a merger of the two parties.

This shows that the Ohio call comes from the republicans of the state and that at least one of the progressive leaders is convinced that it is well worth listening to.

We will not here attempt to set forth the basis on which the republicans and progressives should get together. But that the republicans and progressives must get together on some basis before the next presidential election is perfectly plain.

President Wilson said in his public address at Newark, N. J., Thursday:

"The country did not go democratic in November. It was impossible to go republican because it could not tell what kind of republican to go.

That tells the whole story of the last election and will tell the whole story of the next election unless the two kinds of republicans get together.

With the republicans still divided each kind will butt its head up against a stone wall and the democrats will be continued in power.

With the two kinds of republicans reunited, democrats will be snowed under, for the simple reason that they are in minority in this country.

Get together on some basis—but get together.

AFTER O'HARA

Chicago Tribune:—That considerate statesman, the Hon. Barratt O'Hara, has given another specimen of his ripe reason in declaring that he "proposes to state everywhere" that the profits of Marshall Field & Co. are $17,000,000 a year "until it has been successfully contradicted by the trustees."

What Mr. O'Hara states publicly or privately is becoming of less and less importance but that the lieutenant governorship of the great commonwealth of Illinois should have fallen into the hands of one who is capable of the irresponsible demagoguery resorted to in O'Hara's speech is a matter of public shame and concern.

O'Hara has discredited a public investigation which if seriously, intelligently and fairly conducted would have accomplished substantial good to the workers of the state. When he sheds rhetorical tears over "the little women of Illinois" he is not thinking of the "little women" but of little Barratt O'Hara.

Miss Anna Cheatle is in Chicago visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cheatle.

FREIGHT TRAIN PLUNGES INTO AN OPEN DITCH

A freight train plunged into an open ditch on the Burlington road, between Fenton and Denrock Thursday night, two cars piling on top of the engine, and fifteen cars tumbled into ditch, but strange to say, no one was injured. It will take two days to clear the wreck, and during that time, the track will be blocked.

Bridge Burns Down

A bridge over a drainage ditch was destroyed by fire, the bridge being sixty feet long. The train men did not receive any warning of the same, and a south bound freight train plunged into the open draw. The engine was one of the largest that the company operates on that road, and when it struck the mud bottom of the ditch, it sank beneath the floor of the cab.

Cabmen Wade to Shore

The ditch contained about three feet of water, and the engineer and fireman leaped from the cab into the water and waded to shore. Just how they escaped death is not known for two freight cars ran off the rails and plunged on top of the engine. Those who viewed the wreck, say that it must have been a very close call.

Summon Wrecking Crew

The wrecking crew from Clinton was summoned, and it is announced that two days will be required to remove the wreck, and rebuild the bridge.

SAVED LITTLE GIRL FROM DROWNING

Freeport, May 12—The heroic work of E. J. Welch saved the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Shenberger, 179 Garden St., from death yesterday afternoon, when he lowered himself into a cistern and pulled the infant girl from the water.

The child was playing in the yard, and nearby was an open cistern. While looking into the top she fell in. Her mother saw her fall and called to the neighbors.

ing 100 pounds, and who learned to walk for the first time only two weeks ago, mistook morphine pills of one-eighth grain each for pills he had been accustomed to take for epilepsy, with which he had been afflicted. The poisonous pills had been prescribed for the child's aunt, a sufferer from gall stones. August Sager, father of the boy, lives at 212 American street, and it was noon yesterday when it was discovered that the child had taken the wrong pills. Dr. E. E. Shelley was notified and the youth was taken to the National Sanitarium, where death resulted suddenly at 4:45 o'clock—less than a minute after the boy had taken a drink of water.

SHE PAYS THE PENALTY

There is hardly an American woman who fails to pay the penalty of her sex at some time or other. Pain layt its merciless hand upon her—it may be that dreadful backache, those bearing down pains, side-ache, nervousness, irregularities or the torture of a displacement—it is the penalty of sex. To all such women in this condition Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound comes as a boon and a blessing. A simple remedy made from roots and herbs which has brought glorious health to more suffering women than any other remedy.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

Many farmers and others can recall the fact that when they were boys on the farm, the farmer who had two spring seats was considered a fortunate and well-to-do farmer. Most farmers then had only one spring seat and the children sat behind on boards laid across the wagon box. Then came the farmer who had the spring wagon with springs under it. Then the toy carriage and so on. Now it is the automobile that runs not only on springs, but on cushioned tires and one automobile costs about as much as thirty spring wagons used to cost. In all this we may catch the drift of progress. But we have to have such things at the present date.

Professor at Shurtleff College Helps Capture Turk Fortress.

St. Louis, May 5.—Thomas Kalends, an instructor in Greek at Shurtleff college, Alton, Ill., led the Greek soldiers who captured a Turkish fortress placed on a hill 80 feet high.

A letter from Kalends, telling of the exploit, was received by his uncle. The letter was written on the night of the battle. It says in part:

"On March 15 we were given a command to attack the stronghold of Bezan. While we were in the front ranks the Turks opened a terrible fire. The commander ordered us to remain still until the rest of the regiment came up.

"At six o'clock at night there was a storm of hail and wind. It was cold. The Twenty-first infantry, which I was in, got a signal to advance against the hill.

"Several of us jumped the trenches. I was the first man over. I killed a color bearer and captured his flag. Then I shouted: 'Come on, boys, the battle's won.' The commander praised me and said: 'My brave boy.'"

CHAPTER I.

Poinsettias.
"A remarkable man!"
I pointed to a man hurrying around the corner just ahead of us.

"Yes, he's remarkably well built. I noticed him when he came out of the Clermont." This was a hotel we had just passed.

"But it's not only that. It's his height, his very striking features, his expression—" I stopped suddenly, gripping George's arm convulsively in a surprise he appeared to share. We had turned the corner immediately behind the man of whom we were speaking and so had him still in full view.

"What's he doing?" I asked in a low whisper.

The man ahead of us, presenting in every respect the appearance of a gentleman, had suddenly stooped to the kerb and was washing his hands in the snow, furtively, but with a vigor and purpose which could not fail to arouse the strangest conjectures in any chance onlooker.

"Pilate!" escaped my lips, in a sort of nervous chuckle. But George shook his head at me.

"I don't like it," he muttered, with unusual gravity. "Did you see his face?" Then as the man rose and hurried away from us down the street, "I should like to follow him. I do believe—"

But here we became aware of a quick rush and sudden clamor around the corner we had just left, and turning quickly, saw that something had occurred on Broadway which was fast causing a tumult.

"What's the matter?" I cried. "What can have happened? Let's go see, George. Perhaps it has something to do with our man."

My husband, with a final glance down the street at the fast disappearing figure, yielded to my importunity, and possibly to some new curiosity of his own. "I'd like to stop that man first," said he. "But what excuse have I? He may be nothing but a crank, with some crack-brained idea in his head. We'll soon know; for there's certainly something wrong there on Broadway."

"He came out of the Clermont," I suggested.

"I know. If the excitement isn't there, what we've just seen is simply a coincidence."

It was the last word he had time to speak before we found ourselves in the midst of a crowd of men and women, jostling one another in curiosity or in the consternation following a quick alarm. All were looking one way, and as this was towards the entrance of the Clermont, it was evident enough to us that the alarm had indeed had its origin in the very place we had anticipated. I felt my husband's arm press me closer to his side as we worked our way towards the entrance, and presently caught a warning sound from his lips as the oaths and confused cries everywhere surrounding us were broken here and there by articulate words and we heard:

"Is it murder?"
"The beautiful Miss Challoner!"
"A millionaire in her own right!"
"Killed, they say."

"No, no! suddenly dead; that's all."
"George, what shall we do?" I managed to cry into my husband's ear.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," whispered George, who was as curious as myself. "We will try the rear door where there are fewer persons. Possibly we can make our way in there, and if we can, Slater will tell us all we want to know."

Slater was the assistant manager of the Clermont, and one of George's oldest friends.

"Then hurry," said I. "I am being crushed here."

George did hurry, and in a few minutes we were before the rear entrance of the great hotel. There was a mob gathered here also, but it was neither so large nor so rough as the one on Broadway. Yet I doubt if we should have been able to work our way through it if Slater had not, at that very instant, shown himself in the doorway, in company with an officer to whom he was giving some final instructions.

"Let us in, Slater," George begged. "My wife feels a little faint; she has been knocked about so by the crowd."

I no longer saw the way cleared for our entrance than I made good my husband's words by fainting away in earnest.

When I came to, it was suddenly and with perfect recognition of my surroundings. The small reception room to which I had been taken was one I had often visited, and its familiar features did not hold my attention for a moment. What I did see and welcome was my husband's face bending close over me, and to him I spoke first. My words must have sounded oddly to those about.

"Have they told you anything about it?" I asked. "Did he—"

A quick pressure on my arm silenced me, and then I noticed that we were not alone. Two or three ladies stood near, watching me, and one had evidently been using some restorative, for she held a small vial in her hand. To this lady, George made haste to introduce me, and from her I presently learned the cause of the disturbance in the hotel.

Edith, the well known daughter of Moses Challoner, had fallen suddenly dead on the floor of the mezzanine. She was not known to have been in poor health, still less in danger of a fatal attack, and the shock was consequently great to her friends, several of whom were in the building.

"Was she alone when she fell?" I asked.

"Virtually alone. Some persons sat on the other side of the room, reading at the big round table. They did not even hear her fall. They say that the band was playing unusually loud in the musicians' gallery."

"Are you feeling quite well, now?" "Quite myself," I gratefully replied as I rose slowly from the sofa.

In the hall we encountered Mr. Slater, whom I have before mentioned. He was trying to maintain order while himself in a state of great agitation. Seeing us, he could not refrain from whispering a few words into my husband's ear.

"The doctor has just gone up—her doctor, I mean. He's simply dumb-founded. Says that she was the healthiest woman in New York yesterday. I think—don't mention it, that he suspects something quite different from heart failure."

"What do you mean?" asked George, following the assistant manager down the broad flight of steps leading to the office. Then, as I pressed up close to Mr. Slater's other side, "She was by herself, wasn't she, in the half floor above?"

"Yes, and had been writing a letter. She fell with it still in her hand."

"Have they carried her to her room?" I eagerly inquired, glancing fearfully up at the large semi-circular openings overlooking us from the place where she had fallen.

"Not yet. Mr. Hammond insists upon waiting for the coroner," (Mr. Hammond was the proprietor of the hotel.) "She is lying on one of the big couches near which she fell. If you like, I can give you a glimpse of her. She looks beautiful. It's terrible to think that she is dead."

"I don't know why we consented. We were under a spell, I think. At all events, we accepted his offer and followed him up a narrow staircase open to very few that night. At the top, he turned upon us with a warning gesture which I hardly think we needed, and led us down a narrow hall flanked by openings corresponding to those we had noted from below. At the furthest one he paused and, beckoning us to his side, pointed across the lobby into the large writing-room which occupied the better part of the mezzanine floor."

We saw people standing in various attitudes of grief and dismay about a couch, one end of which only was visible to us at the moment. The doctor had just joined them, and every head was turned towards him and every body bent forward in anxious expectation. I remember the face of one gray haired old man, I shall never forget it. He was probably her father. Later, I knew him to be so. Miss Challoner was stretched out upon the couch. She was dressed as she came from dinner, in a gown of ivory-tinted satin, relieved at the breast by a large bouquet of scarlet poinsettias. The doctor was pointing at these poinsettias in horror and with awful meaning, and though we could not hear his words, we knew almost instinctively, both from his attitude and the cries which burst from the lips of those about him, that something more than broken petals and disordered leaves had met his eyes; that blood was there—slowly oozing drops from the heart—which for some reason had escaped all eyes till now.

Miss Challoner was dead, not from unsuspected disease, but from the violent attack of some murderous weapon. As the realization of this brought fresh panic and bowed the old father's head with emotions even more bitter than those of grief, I turned a questioning look up at George's face.

It was fixed with a purpose I had no trouble in understanding.

CHAPTER II.

"I know the man."

Yet he made no effort to detain Mr. Slater, when that gentleman, under this renewed excitement, hastily left us.

"I want to feel sure of myself," he explained. "Can you bear the strain of waiting around a little longer, Laura?"

"Yes, I can bear it. Don't you think the man we saw had something to do with this? Don't you believe—"

"Hush! What are they saying over there? Can you hear?"

"No. And I cannot bear to look. Yet I don't want to go away. It's all so dreadful."

"It's devilish. Such a beautiful girl! Laura, I must leave you for a moment. Do you mind?"

"No, no; yet—"

I did mind; but he was gone before I could take back my word. Alone, I felt the tragedy much more than when he was with me. I drew back against the wall and hid my eyes, waiting feverishly for George's return.

He came, when he came, in some haste and with certain marks of increased agitation.

"Laura," said he, "Slater says that we may possibly be wanted and proposes that we stay here all night. I have telephoned and made it all right at home. Will you come to your room? This is no place for you."

Nothing could have pleased me better. But I could not go without casting another glance at the tragic scene I was leaving. A stir was perceptible there, and I was just in time to see its cause. A tall, angular gentleman was approaching from the direction of the musicians' gallery, and from the manner of all present, as well as from the whispered comment of my husband, I recognized in him the special official for whom all had been waiting.

"Are you going to tell him?" was my question to George as we made our way down to the lobby.

"That depends. First, I am going to see you settled in a room quite remote from this business."

"I shall not like that."

"I know, my dear, but it is best. I could not gainsay this. Nevertheless, after the first few minutes of relief, I found it very lonesome upstairs."

I was still struggling with this feeling when the door opened, and George came in. There was news in his face as I rushed to meet him.

"Tell me—tell," I begged.

He tried to smile at my eagerness, but the attempt was ghastly.

"I've been listening and looking," said he, "and this is all I have learned. Miss Challoner died, not from a stroke or from disease of any kind, but from a wound reaching the heart. No one saw the attack, or even the approach or departure of the person inflicting this wound. If she was killed by a pistol-shot, it was at a distance, and almost over the heads of the persons sitting at the table we saw there. But the doctors shake their heads at the word pistol-shot, though they refuse to explain themselves or to express any opinion till the wound has been probed. This they are going to do at once, and when that question is decided, I may feel it my duty to speak and may ask you to support my story."

"We can never make them understand how he looked."

"No. I don't expect to."

"Or his manner as he fled."

"Nor that either."

"We can only describe what we saw him do."

"That's all."

"Oh, what an adventure for quiet people like us! George, I don't believe he shot her."

"He must have."

"But they would have seen—have heard—the people around, I mean."

"So they say; but I have a theory—but no matter about that now. I'm going down again to see how things have progressed. I'll be back for you later. Only be ready."

In a half hour or an hour—I never knew which—George reappeared, only to tell me that no conclusions had as yet been reached; an element of great mystery involved the whole affair, and the most astute detectives on the force had been sent for. Her father, who had been her constant companion all winter, had not the least suggestion to offer in way of its solution. To no living being, man or woman, could he point as possessing any motive for such a deed. She had been the victim of some mistake, his lovely and ever kindly disposed daughter, and while the loss was irreparable he would never make it unendurable by thinking otherwise.

Such was the father's way of looking at the matter, and I own that it made our duty a trifle hard. But George's mind, when once made up, was persistent to the point of obstinacy, and while he was yet talking he led me out of the room and down the hall to the elevator.

"Mr. Slater knows we have something to say, and will manage the interview before us in the very best manner," he confided to me now with an encouraging air. "We are to go to the blue reception room on the parlor floor."

Mr. Slater was there according to his promise, and after introducing us, briefly stated that we had some evidence to give regarding the terrible occurrence which had just taken place in the house.

George bowed, and the chief spokesman—I am sure he was a police officer of some kind—asked him to tell what it was.

Then my husband spoke up, and related our little experience. If it did not create a sensation, it was because these men were well accustomed to surprises of all kinds.

"Washed his hands—just after the alarm was raised here?" repeated one.

"And you saw him come out of this house?" another put in.

"Yes, sir; we noticed him particularly."

"Can you describe him?"

It was Mr. Slater who put this question; he had less control over himself, and considerable eagerness could be heard in his voice.

"He was a very fine-looking man; unusually tall and unusually striking both in his dress and appearance. What I could see of his face was bare of beard, and very expressive. He walked with the swing of an athlete, and only looked mean and small when he was stooping and dabbled in the snow."

"His clothes. Describe his clothes."

There was an odd sound in Mr. Slater's voice.

"He wore a silk hat and there was fur on his overcoat. I think the fur was black."

Mr. Slater stepped back, then moved forward again with a determined air.

"I know the man," said he.

CHAPTER III.

The Man.

"You know the man?"

"I do; or rather, I know a man who answers to this description. He comes here once in a while."

"His name?"

"Brotherston. A very uncommon person in many respects; quite capable of such an eccentricity, but incapable, I should say, of crime. He's a gifted talker and so well read that he can hold one's attention for hours. Of his tastes, I can only say that they appear to be mainly scientific. But he is not averse to society, and is always very well dressed."

Meanwhile, George had advanced to speak to a man who had beckoned to him from the other side of the room, and with whom in another moment I saw him step out. Thus deserted, I sank into a chair near one of the windows.

Where was he? The man who had other opening. It follows then that the only possible means of approach to this room lies through the archway H, or from the elevator door. But the elevator made no stop at the mezzanine on or near the time of the attack upon Miss Challoner; nor did any one leave the table or pass by it in either direction till after the alarm given by her fall.

But a bullet calls for no approach. A man at X might raise and fire his pistol without attracting any attention to himself. The music, which all acknowledge was at its full climax at this moment, would drown the noise of the explosion, and the stair case, out of view of all but the victim, afford the same means of immediate escape, which it must have given of secret and unseen approach. The coat-room into which it descended communicated with the lobby very near the main entrance, and if Mr. Brotherston were the man, his sudden appearance there would thus be accounted for.

It began to look bad for this man, if indeed he were the one we had seen under the street-lamp; and as George and I reviewed the situation, we felt our position to be serious enough for us severally to set down our impressions of this man before we lost our first vivid idea. I do not know what George wrote, for he sealed his words up as soon as he had finished writing, but this is what I put on paper while my memory was still fresh and my excitement unabated:

"He had the look of a man of powerful intellect and determined will, who shudders while he triumphs; who outwardly washes his hands of a deed over which he inwardly gloats. This was when he first rose from the snow. Afterwards he had a moment of fear; plain, human, everyday fear. But this was evanescent. Before he had turned to go, he showed the self-possession of one who feels himself so secure, or is so well-satisfied with himself, that he is no longer conscious of other emotions."

"Poor fellow," I commented aloud, as I folded up these words; "he reckoned without you, George. By tomorrow he will be in the hands of the police."

And with this sentence ringing in my mind, I lay down and endeavored to sleep. But it was not till very late that rest came.

At last I slept, but it was only to rouse again with the same quick realization of my surroundings, which I had experienced on my recovery from my fainting fit of hours before. Someone had stopped at our door before hurrying by down the hall. Who was that someone? I rose on my elbow, and endeavored to peer through the dark. Of course, I could see nothing. But when I woke a second time, there was enough light in the room, early as it undoubtedly was, for me to detect a letter lying on the carpet just inside the door.

Instantly I was on my feet. Catching the letter up, I carried it to the window. Our two names were on it—Mr. and Mrs. George Anderson; the writing, Mr. Slater's.

I glanced over at George. He was sleeping peacefully. It was too early to wake him, but I could not let that letter down unread; was not my name on it? Tearing it open, I devoured its contents—the exclamation I made on reading it, waking George.

The writing was in Mr. Slater's hand, and the words were:

"I must request, at the instance of Coroner Heath and such of the police as listened to your adventure, that you make no further mention of what you saw in the street under our windows last night. The doctors find no bullet in the wound. This clears Mr. Brotherston."

I was greatly interested, of course, and had plenty to think of till I saw George again and learned the result of the latest investigations.

Miss Challoner had been shot, not stabbed. No other deduction was possible from such facts as were now known, though the physicians had not yet handed in their report, or ever intimated what that report would be. No assailant could have approached or left her, without attracting the notice of some one, if not all of the persons seated at a table in the same room. She could only have been reached by a bullet sent from a point near the head of a small winding staircase connecting the mezzanine floor with a coat-room adjacent to the front door. This has already been insisted on, as you will remember, and if you will glance at the diagram which George hastily scrawled for me, you will see why.

A. B., as well as C. D., are half circular openings into the office lobby. E. F. are windows giving upon Broadway, and G. and party wall, necessarily unbroken by window, door or any other opening. It follows then that the only possible means of approach to this room lies through the archway H, or from the elevator door. LAMSON BROS and COMPANY

Dixon, May 5, 1913.

Wheat: Rains brot easiness in the market and declines 1-2 to 5-8. The report by the seaboard that 45 loads of Duluth had been worked for export steadied the market, but no rally came. In view of favorable state reports trade is bearish on govt report and acts accordingly. Liquidation early and commission houses best buyers on resting orders at declines. Visible supply shows decrease and total is less than 5,500,000 bus larger than last year from crop supposed to have been over 100,000,000 bus more than 1911. Cash packers at Liverpool show steadiness for future delivery. Much wheat reaching seaboard and clearances this week and month should be heavy as most of the freight room is engaged but unless there is increase in fresh export business or change in crop conditions the market is not likely to show much strength.

Corn. Did well with trade dull not to lose more than 1-4c. Decrease in visible was May's support. In spite of record winter movement visible is less than last year and Chicago stocks show less than 2,000,000 bus more than Dec, tho we have recd nearly 72,000,000 bus since then. Market is debatable, a basis of 50c to Illinois farmers. Shippers try to clean up winter shelled in order to take care of run of fresh shelled expected between now and the end of June.

Oats. A better feeling as result of rain led to easiness but declines were not marked. Receipts continue light in view of heavy reserves supposed to be held by farmers. Unless pressure from producer becomes greater the market may fluctuate as result of new crop conditions as supplies in hands of distributors and consumers are light.

Provisions: Extreme dullness in trade and in spite of low market at the yards prices for product firm. A little buying by houses thought to be acting for packers was sufficient to prevent declines as offerings were light. Cash trade said to be good for this season.

DIXON CITIZENS GLADLY TESTIFY AND CONFIDENTLY RECOMMEND DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

It is testimony like the following that has placed Doan's Kidney Pills so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voices in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Dixon citizen:

John Salzman, 103 Artesian Ave., Dixon, Ill., says: "I have no reason to change my good opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills which I publicly expressed some years ago. I had backache a great deal and pains across my loins. My kidneys did not act regularly and I felt miserable in every way. Finally I used Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Leake Bros. Co's. Drug Store and they did good work, relieving me. I keep them in the house and whenever I take them, they help me." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. DEBATE IS NEAR END

House Will Furnish Talk on Tariff
Tomorrow.

Real Battle Will Come in Senate Over
Free Wool and Sugar
Features.

Washington, May 5.—The announcement that the end of the wearisome debate on the Democratic tariff bill would be reached by tomorrow night came as a surprise. At the conclusion of discussion in the house the measure will go to the senate practically unamended, save for a few minor details, where the real battle will be fought.

That the battle of the senators over the various schedules will be of long duration and provocative of bitter debate is a foregone conclusion. There is keen antagonism over the free wool and free sugar features of the Underwood bill and the dissatisfaction of certain senators from wool and sugar producing states, most of whom are Democrats, is expected to take concrete form.

There was little fear expressed by those close to the administration that these senators would bolt the party, but it was thought not unlikely that Senator Simmons' estimate of six weeks for the final passage and adoption of the Underwood bill by the senate might be exceeded.

There is no way to curtail the address of a member of the senate, as there is in the house, and furthermore it is regarded as significant that the rules committee has turned down Senator Ashurst's resolution throwing all committee meetings open to the public. This will have the effect of giving the disgruntled legislators greater latitude in committee, an advantage they are only too likely to take.

THIRTEEN DROWN IN RIVERS

Men, Boys and Girls Lose Lives in Accidents on Water.

Boston, May 5.—When an overloaded rowboat sprang a leak in the Charles river and sank within twenty feet of the embankment, six of its youthful occupants, three girls and three boys, from eight to sixteen years old, all of Cambridge, were drowned. Two other boys, the only ones in the party able to swim, was saved.

Worthville, Ky., May 5.—Four persons were drowned when the river steamer Sonoma sank at Glenmary. When an effort was being made to land the boat struck a snag which caused it to careen and fill, then sink. A score of passengers and crew were pitched into the water.

Cincinnati, May 5.—Two women and a man were drowned in the Ohio river here when the skiff in which they were rowing upset. The party attempted to get out of the way of a passing excursion steamer and rowed close to a fleet of coal barges. The waves from the steamer upset their skiff and all were drawn underneath the barges and drowned.

HEETER TRIAL ON TODAY

Superintendent of Schools in Pittsburgh Charged With Immorality.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 5.—Before a tribunal unique in the history of American cities, S. L. Heeter, superintendent of the schools of Pittsburgh, will be tried beginning this afternoon on charges that he is morally unfit to supervise the education of the 76,000 pupils that have been under his care.

He is charged by two newspapers with having gone to North Manchester, Ind., on the eve of the first date set for the hearings, not primarily for the purpose of visiting a dying mother, as he told the school board, but to round up old acquaintances that are supposed to have knowledge of his "past."

WRONG ACT IS RATIFIED

Wisconsin Legislators Make Error in Direct Vote Resolution.

Washington, May 5.—It has just been discovered here that the Wisconsin legislature in its anxiety to provide for the direct election of senators came near preventing it going into effect for several months. In ratifying the direct election amendment it embodied a copy of a resolution for direct election which had never passed congress, overlooking the certified copy of the resolution that actually had passed congress.

The attention of the Wisconsin legislature has been called from here to this error and as it is still in session the blunder will doubtless be rectified.

Mr. Sorg was born in Middletown, O., in 1878.
